Royal Daimler officially launched and Car Club formed

The National Museum of Australia's Royal Daimler was officially launched on Tuesday 20 August, after a 10 year restoration period.

When purchased by the Museum in 2009, the 1948 vehicle was in a very poor state, having been stored in a barn in South Australia, for many years. The upholstery was rat infested, the body paint was worn and faded and the engine required a full rebuild.

Perseverance and the assistance of many people and organisations both within Australia and overseas brought the laudaulette back to the condition when it was used by Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh during their 1954 Royal Tour.

At the launch the museum's Curator of Big Objects, Nathan Pharaoh, said it would not have been possible to preserve and restore the four-ton vehicle without the assistance and cooperation of many experts in their fields, including upholsterers, mechanics, painters, and researchers.

The vehicle had its first public run at Wakefield Park Raceway on Saturday 17 August in front of a crowd of 3000 car enthusiasts.

The DE 36hp Royal Daimler will be on display in the main hall of the museum for a couple of months, before joining the rest of the museum's ever-growing historic vehicle fleet.

Airbag recall

The recall of airbags in a variety of vehicles is coming to an end.

More than 100 000 vehicles in Australia known to have the faulty airbags have still not had their vehicle airbags replaced.

In certain circumstances, when the airbags are deployed, small metal particles can cause serious injury to vehicle occupants.

Replace of faulty airbags is free.

Chequered Past

The National Museum of Australia Chequered Past vehicle display at Wakefield Park attracted more than 3000 car club members and vehicle enthusiasts.

The Museum brought out 12 of its important vehicle collection to parade around the race track.

Car clubs from Canberra, Queanbeyan, Goulburn, Braidwood, Cooma and the NSW South Coast attended the event.

MoU to be prepared

The Council will prepare a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) setting out the role and responsibilities of the Council and clubs organising the two Council events – Wheels and Marques in the Park.

Next Council Meeting – September 19 AGM October
